PREFACE

The journal Current Medicinal Chemistry, is all set to come up with its 29th Volume in the year 2022. Its aim is to provide its readers with the latest developments in medicinal chemistry.

The journal has gained a global reach with 1.8 million visits and over 100,000 article downloads annually. The journal has over 25,000 subscribers for its electronic table of contents, and around 30,000 followers on different social media networks including Facebook, Twitter, WordPress, and LinkedIn which shows the widespread interest in this important journal.

The continuously improving impact factor of the journal is a clear testimony of how the editorial team continues to strive for excellence.

I would like to thank all contributing authors and the members of the Editorial Board, including Regional Editors and Section Editors, and the entire Bentham Science team for their continuous support.

Looking forward to another excellent year for the journal.

Atta-ur-Rahman, FRS
Honorary Life Fellow King's College
University of Cambridge, UK
Editor-in-Chief
Current Medicinal Chemistry